

This is The Day

The Perfect Setting

A Hotel has stood on this site for generations and from the immaculate gardens today it's easy to see why, the horizon stretches out into the Irish Sea punctured by the dramatic outline of Ailsa Craig in the distance and Arran's majestic mountains only sixteen miles from the coast offer a romantic and unique backdrop to your wedding.

The sandy beach is accessed directly from the hotels manicured lawns offering the perfect setting for your photographs while your guests are offered champagne and canapés in the shadow of our Victorian teahouse which graces the gardens.

As much of the rain destined to fall on our shore is instead caught by the dramatic Arran hills, our little piece of the Ayrshire coast is dryer and sunnier than most, allowing our brides and grooms to enjoy our stunning and unique location.

The only thing we overlook is the sea

Beautifully situated on the Firth of Clyde, with grounds leading directly on to the shore it commands a magnificent prospect. From the front door more than 100 square miles of land and sea lie open to the view. To the West across the Firth rise the majestic peaks of Arran; to the North are the Cumbraes, Bute and the Argyllshire hills; while to the Southward one can descry Ailsa Craig and follow the outline of the mainland as far as the entrance to Loch Ryan.
